

Consultancy That Works for You

Expert consultancy for organisations using the Qlik platform

Since 2009 Quick Intelligence have done nothing but deliver inspired Qlik solutions to our customers in the UK. We offer consulting on a day rate basis and can assist with any stage of an implementation from licensing and architecture design right through to post-production support, training and bespoke workshops.

Proven expertise

We never put a junior developer or contractor on your project. You will work directly with our principal consultant, Steve Dark, and his small team of respected Qlik experts.

Steve is a Qlik Community MVP, Qlik Luminary Alumni and Qlik Partner Ambassador. He is also a respected blogger and has been involved with creating several books on Qlik-related topics.

We work the way you want us to

At Quick Intelligence, we have no such thing as a 'typical customer'. Each of our clients is unique, and we treat them that way. For some we will build an initial dashboard and leave the internal BI team to take it from there, for others we work alongside them to deliver all their analysis requirements.

Our core principles are about openness and transfer of knowledge. We always educate as we deliver, allowing our customers to become self-sufficient, rather than forcing them to take further days.

Transparent pricing

We've built our reputation on honesty and transparency. Our expert technical knowledge leaves us well-placed to identify the best value solutions and licensing options for our customers.

Extensive product range knowledge

As well as being able to design, build and deliver exceptional data visualisation applications, we also have skills across a broad range of Qlik and third party products and platforms. This includes generating scheduled output utilising Qlik Automations and extending Qlik's capabilities by leveraging API's for various online platforms. Wherever you are looking to take your next data visualisation steps, it is likely that we have been there already.
